CONGRESS.

After Considering Messages from the President the Senate Goes Into Executive Session.

A Concurrent Resolution Presented for a Joint Meeting of the House and Senate.

For the Declaration of the Election of the President and Vice-President.

Congressional News.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Messages from the president were laid before the senate transmitting information heretofore called for regarding the landing of foreign cables in the United States; the awards of the Venezuelan mixed commission, and the status of the Oklahoma lands, which lands, the president maintains, cannot under existing treaties be opened for settlement.

Without the transaction of other business, the senate then went into executive session.

HOUSE.

Clay, from the committee on presidential laws, reported a concurrent resolution providing that the two houses shall assemble in the hall of the house at noon on the 11th of February, 1885, pursuant to the requirements of the constitution and laws relating to the president and vice-president of the United States, and the president of the senate shall be the presiding officer. That one person shall be appointed teller on part of the senate, and two as tellers on part of the house to make a list of the votes as they shall be declared. That the result shall be delivered to the president of the senate who shall announce the state vote and persons elected to the houses assembled as aforesaid which shall be deemed a declaration of the persons elected president and vice-president.

Bills were introduced and referred as follows:

By Curtis, appropriating $25,000 for experiments with American made steel armor for naval vessels.

By Paton, for the voluntary retirement of officers who entered the service during the late war.

Page offered a resolution reciting that no official notification has been made to the house of the resignation of J. S. Robinson, now secretary of the state of Ohio, as representative of the Ninth district of Ohio, directing the committee on elections to investigate and report upon the status of Robinson as a member of this body. Adopted.

Stevens, from the committee on military affairs, reported back a resolution requesting the president to transmit to the house a copy of the recent appeal of Fitz John Porter, together with all accompanying papers. Steele moved to lay the resolution upon the table; last. The resolution was then passed.

The speaker then laid before the house a message from the president transmitting a communication from the secretary of the navy recommending action by the government in recognition of services official and personal extended in Russia to survivors of the Jeannette and to search parties subsequently sent to Siberia. Referred.

Cox, of North Carolina, presented the credentials of J. W. Reed as member elect of the Fifth district of North Carolina to succeed A. M. Scales.

Hewitt, of New York, moved that the house go into a committee of the whole for the purpose of considering the bill to carry into effect the Mexican treaty, lost, year 81; nays 157.

Mr. White, of Kentucky, rising to correct the Journal, demanding the joint resolution introduced by him yesterday, abolishing the office of commissioner of internal revenue to be read.

The speaker, stated the Journal, was correct and it was not competent for the gentleman to demand a reading of the resolution.

Mr. White complained that the text resolution was not printed in the record and the speaker replied, he had informed the official reporters that under the rules, a resolution should be printed.

I would lose time in trying to play tutor in such cases, said Mr. Blackburn.

Mr. White, of course you do. I agree with the gentleman. Mr. White then continued, his speech created a good deal of laughter and securing his point by reading the joint resolution and then ordering its printing in the records. He then withdrew his resolution.

The speaker of the chair desires to state, that he has not assumed any control over the record whatever. He has neither inserted anything or struck out anything of what occurred in the house, but on being applied to by an official reporter to know what could properly be printed in the record.

Mr. McComas offered an amendment authorizing the retirement of General Grant, though not specifically naming him with the rank and file and pay of a general. Ruled out on a point of order raised by Mr. Forney, who has charge of the bill.

The president nominated William M. Duvill, of Louisiana, naval officer of customs of the district of New Orleans.

VICTORY.

General Stewart Repulses the Enemy and Intrenches Himself in a Strong Position.

The Rebels Routed but Defiant.—The Ferocious Fighting of the Arabs.

Two London War Correspondents Killed --Lord St. Vincent Among the Officers Slain.

The Story of Stewart's Battle.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The intelligence is just received at the war office that General Stewart's force is entrenched south of Metemnah. The dispatch also gives the gratifying information that Stewart is in communication with General Gordon. Stewart's force had several fights with Arab rebels before it captured Metemnah. Stewart himself was badly wounded and five of the mahdi's emirs were killed in the fights. General Wolseley, in the dispatch, reports the capture of Metemnah by the British. He also reports that Sir Charles Wilson has gone to Khartoum to confer with Gordon. It is expected that he will return as soon as possible and report personally to Wolseley.

An official dispatch received this afternoon from Gordon shows that his position at Khartoum is by no means as desperate as supposed. He says he could hold out for years. Stewart's wounds are reported as doing well.

The excitement occasioned by the explosion and the great anxiety concerning the fate of General Stewart which has existed the past several days is completely obliterated to-day by the news of Stewart's capture of Metemnah. Great enthusiasm prevails and many congratulations over the success of Stewart's expedition have been received at the war office.

The official dispatches indicate that the march of Stewart and his little army from Abukien Wells to his present position has been no easy task. Almost every foot of the way appears to have been sharply contested by the resolute Arab foe and there was a constant succession of encounters from the action of the 17th till the Nile was reached. The British troops steadily gained fresh victories over the impetuous but greatly demoralized rebels.

At Abukien the enemy appeared in force in front of the advancing British army and a short, fierce battle was fought. This occurred at a point about three miles from the Nile. The British were compelled to sustain a heavy fire for some time. Early in the engagement Stewart received his wound and Sir Charles Wilson thereupon assumed command. Works were hastily constructed, under the leaden rain, which continued to pour upon them from the enemies' rifles.

The wounded men and baggage train left under a guard behind quickly built earth works, while the rest of the force advanced in the face of the hostile foe to a gravel ridge some distance in front where a large force of rebels had established themselves in a strong position.

As soon as the British line came near a charge led by several emirs was made against it by the rebel force. The British troops were arranged as usual in the form of a square and steadily advanced to meet the wild onset of the loudly cheering enemy who were rushing down upon them. At the same time the rifles of the British were doing bloody execution. The charge was checked and not an Arab came within thirty yards of the British force.

The rebels did not long stand before the murderous English fire but were repulsed with a heavy loss. Five emirs and 250 men were left dead upon the field and a large number wounded. About the English losses but few details are yet received. It is known, however, that Cameron, special correspondent of the London Daily Standard and Herbert, special correspondent of the Morning Post, were killed. The place where the battle occurred is a slight distance beyond Shebocat Wells.

Stewart's wound while not fatal, is so serious that he will be disabled for the remainder of the present campaign. General Wolseley considers the deprivation of his services a national loss. He characterized Stewart as the ablest soldier and most daring commander he ever knew and recommends him to the queen's most favorable consideration.

Lord St. Vincent, of the artillery, was among those slain.

Stewart now holds a strongly fortified post at Ganbut, not far from Metemnah on the Nile, half way between Barber and Wharlon. Opposite Ganbut is a large island on which plenty of forage for the horses and camels is easily obtained. So strong is this position that it is confidently asserted it can be held by a small garrison against any force which the rebels could attack.

A Korti dispatch to Reuter's agency says General Stewart gained a brilliant victory on the 19th over the rebels. The enemy numbered 7,000 and a large number were cavalrymen armed with rifles.

The British loss is twenty killed and sixty wounded. The total loss of the enemy is 1,900. The firing began in the morning and lasted all day. Colonel

Burleigh, special correspondent of the London Telegraph, and Lords Aire and Somerset are among the wounded.

Nicholas Aregon, the famous outlaw, surrenders after a vigorous fight.

LASVEGAS, New Mexico, January 27.—Nicholas Aregon, the famous outlaw, at one time a member of the notorious

"Billy the Kid" gang, was captured this morning by Lincoln officers near Chaperita, thirty miles south of this place. The officers surrounded an old hut in which the outlaw had taken shelter. In answer to a demand for his surrender he sent word by a Mexican woman that he had plenty to eat and drink, abundance of ammunition and would never be taken.

Deputy John Harley mounted the roof and while digging a hole, through which fire might be communicated to the inside, was shot dead by the desperado. A general fusilade followed during which Aregon and Officer Brant were wounded. A messenger was sent to Las Vegas for reinforcements and giant powder with which to blow up the hut. In the meantime Aregon sent out his guns and surrendered. He will arrive at Las Vegas to-morrow. He is an old time killer and numbers fully a dozen on his dead list. The enraged populace are liable to lynch him.

Dynamiters in New York.

NEW YORK, January 27.—This afternoon, Eugene Spofford, of the firm of Spofford Bros., No. 22 State street, discovered lying in the hallway of the second floor of the building, an old looking package, partly wrapped up in a newspaper to which was attached a lighted fuse. The fuse was extinguished and the bundle carried into the office and found to contain a cylindrical shaped tin box about eight inches wide and four inches high, with a hole in the top and a quantity of bluish powder within. Several gentlemen pronounced the powder dynamite. The British consul general offices are on the second floor of the building.

The Canadian Carnival.

MONTREAL, January 27.—The weather is very cold to-day, the thermometer is eleven below zero. The streets, notwithstanding, are crowded with sight-seekers. Every train that arrives adds to its hundreds for visitors bound to see the carnival. Hotels are all full, it is said, with a class even superior to that of last year. This morning the promenade concert held in the Victoria Rink was largely attended. The Quebec Snow Shoe clubs continued to arrive this morning. The mayor issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens to observe Thursday as a holiday.

A Laughable Scene.

MONTREAL, January 27.—A supposed internal machine found in the post office last night was carefully guarded by the police until this morning, when an investigation was held, which resulted in the discovery that the dreaded machine was a cover of a water closet.

Torn to Pieces.

PITTSBURG, PA., January 27.—A Gorman, named Hines, while working near a fly wheel in Pitscon & Burgers nail mill this morning, accidentally stepped in and was literally torn to pieces.

The Boomers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 27.

The following dispatch announcing the failure of the Oklahoma boomers has been received:

FORT LEAVENWORTH, KAN., January 27, 1885.

To Adjutant-General, Washington, D. C.

The following has just been received from General Hatch at Stillwater: "I have stopped the troops en route to Caldwell until I receive further orders."

STILLWATER CREEK, Indian Territory, January 27, 1885.

To the Adjutant-General of the Department of Missouri.

"The Boomer colony has come to terms: They will leave the country for the nearest point on the Kansas line. The troops will be sent with them. The reinforcements from Coffeyville turned back to the Kansas line, when within six miles of this place on the approach of the troops and are hurrying out of the country. I will send troops to look for the men coming from Wichita by way of Hunnewell. We have troops sufficient."

(Signed) HATCH, Colonel.

AUSTRALIA, Brigadier General Comdg."

EP. PERRY KILLED.

This afternoon information came here relating that Ed. Perry was instantly killed in the Wabash yards at Dauville, Ill., where he was employed to run the pumping machinery. Mr. Perry is a Fort Wayne boy and his home is at 164 West Wayne street. The body is now en route here.

Mr. Perry's duty was to take care of the pumping machinery along the Wabash road. His father, Engineer Perry, failed when he heard the news.

EXCRU

CRATING is expressive of the most intense pain, and yet different from rheumatism and neuralgia say it does not express the agony they cause.

CAN THE PAIN BE RELIEVED?

Mr. Ben F. Congdon, Randolph, N. Y., writes:

"Mrs. Mary J. Wilcox is using ATHLOPHOROS now continually for long periods. Indiana, Kentucky, and Ohio are using it, and it is doing nothing else give her such relief from the excruciating pains as ATHLOPHOROS."

No medicine has ever been produced that has been so successful as

and testimonials regarding its efficacy come unsolicited from all parts of the country.

Mr. E. H. Watson, 161, 18th St. Detroit, Mich., says:

"About March 1st my wife was taken with a severe attack of rheumatism, and the physicians could only suffer to remain in bed. I tried every medicine with no relief, and turned to the Athlophorus. Mrs. A. After taking six doses, pain was entirely gone and swelling nearly all reduced. The medicine has worked well, and I am now well again. I find that another bottle or two will give positive cure."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express postpaid, and regular, to you. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he does not, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed.

THE INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

The senate joined with the house of representatives Monday, and both bodies were addressed at length by Senator

Voorhees, ex-Senator McDonald and

Hon. W. H. English.

The senate has 190 bills on its calendar and the house 247. Of the senate bills

14 have either been laid on the table or indefinitely postponed, and 27 favorably reported from the committees, leaving 149 still in the hands of committees.

The house has passed two bills, has indefinitely postponed and otherwise unfavorably disposed of twenty-four bills, and has no less than forty-four bills on the speaker's table that have been reported back from committees, read a second time, engrossed, and are now on their third reading. There are, therefore, 177 house bills in the hands of committees. Under the rules of the house, reports from committees will hereafter be simply presented, and action thereon postponed until the bills referred to are called up for a second reading, which will be on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays of each week. The probabilities are that by the adoption of this method the house will constantly keep ahead of the senate.

At the caucus of the democratic members of the house yesterday evening it was decided to favor the Cooper investigation committee as the best means of showing the accounts of Mr. Cooper to be all right.

It was also decided to vote in favor of the civil rights bill, and to let

John M. Goar, trustee for the soldiers orphans' home, demand an investigation of the charges preferred against him.

The committee on the part of the house to investigate the affairs of the state treasurer's office was appointed as follows: Messrs. Patton, McMullen,

Sayre, Gooding and Brownlee.

Mr. Hoben, of Shelby, has introduced a bill to permit the catching of fish in such streams as dry up during the summer months.

A bill providing for a state boiler inspector was introduced in the house yesterday.

Senator Mayer's bill for the appropriation of the requisite funds for the completion of the new hospitals for the insane was referred to the committee on the insane.

Mr. McClellan, of Porter, has introduced a bill to require railroad companies to carry passengers on freight trains.

Speaking of the measure, Mr. McClellan said such a law would be of great benefit to the people in the northern part of the state.

A bill has been introduced to require all druggists in the state, who keep in-toxincants for sale, to keep an account of every sale of liquor, sold in less quantities than a quart at a time, the name of the party obtaining the same and the purpose for which it was to be used.

The act requires the druggist to make a report of all such transactions every three months, and make oath that the same is true. The act further requires the attention of the grand jury of each county to be called to the act by the judge of the circuit court, and a failure to comply with the same is made a penal offense, while any one making a false report will be deemed guilty of perjury.

Remember a complete cure for aches, pains, sores, pimples, urinary sediments, disturbing dreams, nervousness, disposedency, indigestion and general weakness of mind and body, brought on by improper habits or otherwise, is found in two or three bottles of Dr. Guyot's

Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, as has been proven by the experience of many who long suffered, but now feel well and strong in all parts of the body.

If there is anything in petitions, the militia bill now before the general assembly will become a law. The bill is a good one and seems to be well guarded at all points. A well trained and disciplined militia is a bulwark to a state. In this country we do not need any great standing army, but we ought to have a militia that can be called into the field at any time and be ready to meet the foe.

The first printed calendar is dated bridge, Mass., was an almanac.

try.

Thomas Brooks, of Lancaster, Pa., writes as follows:

"This is to inform you that I have had an attack of fever and ague. I have tried almost every kind of medicine, but found no relief. Your Mishler's Herb Bitters has entirely cured me. It has been a long time since I had an attack, and I feel confident that the cure is permanent." This sovereign remedy is equally good for the stomach, bowels and kidneys.

A woman in Ohio gave $1,000 to a faith cure doctor, who at once disape-ared. She was cured—of her faith.

Ladies love delicate and delicious perfumes. In Parker's Hair balsam they not only satisfy this taste, but have an article which arrests falling hair, removes dandruff, restores the original color and imparts a beautiful gloss, softness and life. Does not soil the linen, is not a dye, is cleanly and economical.

Spanish eggs for best pair of 'Dawkins.' The eggs are safe enough; but we should like to see the 'Dawkins.' Wonder what they are, anyhow?" ### CHAPTER XVII.

APLOGIES.

We must now describe the place to which Hope conducted his daughter, and please do not skip our little description. It is true that some of our gifted contemporaries paint Italian scenery at prodigious length à propos de toutes and others show in many pages that the rocks and the sea are picturesque objects, even when irrelevant. True that others gild the evening clouds and the western horizon merely to please the horizon and the clouds. But we hold with Pope that

"The proper study of mankind is man," and that authors' pictures are bore, except in narrow frames to big incidents. The true model, we think, for a writer is found in the opening lines of "Marmion" where the castle at even-tide, its yellow lustre, its drooping banner, its mail-clad warders reflecting the western blaze, the tramp of the sentinel, and his low-hummed song, are sung on paper with the broad and telling touch of Rubens, not from an irrelevant admiration of old castles and the setting sun, but because the human figures of the story are riding up to that sun-gilt castle to make it a scene of great words and deeds.

Even so, though on a much humbler scale, we describe Hope's cottage and garden, merely because it was for a moment or two the scene of a remarkable incident never yet presented in history or fiction.

This cottage, then, was in reality something between a villa and a cottage; it resembled a villa in this, that the rooms were lofty, and the windows were casements, glazed with plate glass and very large. Walter Clifford had built it for a curate, who proved a bird of passage, and the said Walter had a horror of low rooms, for he said, "I always feel as if the ceiling was going to fatten me to the floor." Owing to this the bed-room windows, which looked westward on the garden, were a great height from the ground, and the building had a Gothic character.

Still there was much to justify the term cottage. The door, which looked southward on the road, was at the side of the building, and opened, not into a hall, but into the one large sitting-room, which was thirty feet long and twenty-five feet broad, and instead of a plaster ceiling there were massive joists, which Hope had gilded and painted till they were a sight to behold. Another cottage feature; the walls were literally clothed with verdure and color; in front, huge creeping geraniums, jasminine, and Virginia creepers hide the brick-work; and the western walls, to use the words of a greater painter than ourselves, were "quite overgrown with lush mosses, with sweet musk-roses, and with clematis."

In the next place, the building stood in a genuine cottage garden. It was close to the road. The southern boundary was plain oak palings, made of upright pieces which Hope had varnished so that the color was now a fine amber; the rest of the boundary was a quickset hedge, in the western division of which stood an enormous oak-tree, a blow at the buck. And the garden was fair with humble flowers—pink, sweet-williams, crimson marigolds, double daisies, lilies, and tulips; but flower-bedshaded the garden with friendly cabbages, potatoes, onions, carrots, and asparaguses.

To this humble but pleasant abode Hope conducted his daughter, and insisted upon her lying down on the sofa in the sitting-room. Then he ordered the woman who kept the house for him to prepare the spare bed-room, which looked into the garden, and to cut some of the sweet-smelling flowers. He himself had much to say to his daughter, and, above all, to demand her explanation of the awkward circumstances that had been just revealed. But she had received a great shock, and, like most manly men, he had a great consideration for the weakness of women, and his paternal heart said, "Let her have an hour or two of absolute repose before I subject her to any trial whatever." So he opened the window to give her air, enjoining her most strictly not to move, and even to go to sleep if she could; and then he put on his shooting coat, with large inside pockets, to go and buy her a little wine—a thing he never touched himself—and what other humble delicacies the village afforded. He walked briskly away from his door without the least idea that all his movements were watched from a hiding-place upon his own premises, no other than the great oak-tree, hollow and open at the back, in which Leonard Monckton had bored two peep-holes, and was now ensconced there watching him.

Hope had not gone many yards from his own door when he was confronted by one of those ruffians who, by their way of putting it, are the eternal butt of iniquitous people and iniquitous things, honest, honest men, curst them! and the law, confound it! This was no other than that Ben Burnley, who, being a ruffian, had stuck half-way between Devonshire and Durham, and had been some months in Bartley's mine. He opened on Hope in a loud voice, and dialect which we despair of conveying with absolute accuracy.

"Mr. Hope, sir, they won't let me go down t' mine."

"They're discharged."

"Who by?"

"What for?"

"For smoking in the mine, in spite of three warnings."

"You're smoking in t' mine! Who told you lie?"

"You were seen to pick the lock of your Davy-lamp, and that put the mine in danger. Then you were seen to light your pipe at the bare light, and that put it worse peril."

"That's a lie. What man's got to do with my skin's now to me? It's all one as it is to them bars that would rob me of my bread out of clean spite."

"It's the truth, and proved by four honest witnesses. There are a hundred and fifty men and twenty ponies in that mine, and their lives must not be sacrificed by one two-legged brute that won't hear reason. You are discharged, and paid; so be good enough to quit the premises and find work elsewhere; and Lord help your employer, whoever he is!"

Hope would waste no more time over this fellow. He turned his back, and went off briskly on his more important errand.

Burnley shook his fist at him, and discharged a volley of horrible curses after him. Whilst he was thus raging after the man that had done his duty he heard a satirical chuckle. He turned his head, and behold there was the sneering face of his fellow jail-bird Monckton. Burnley started.

"Yes, mate," said Monckton, "it is me. And what sort of a pal are you, that couldn't send me a word to Portland that you had dropped me on this rascal Hope? You knew I was after him. You might have saved me the trouble, you scurvy blarsh."

Burnley submitted at once to the ascendancy of Monckton; he hung his head, and mumbled "I am no scholar to write to folks."

"You grudged a joey to a bloke to write for you. Now I suppose you expect me to be a good pal to you again, all the same?"

"Why not?" said Burnley. "He is poison to you as well as to me. He gave you twelve years' penal; you told me so at Portland; let's he revenged on him."

"What else do you think I am here for, you fool? But empty revenge, that's child's play. The question is, can you do what you are told?"

"Ay, if I see a chance of revenge, Why, I always did what you told me."

"Very well, then; there's nothing ripe yet."

"You don't mean I am to wait a year for my revenge."

"You will have to wait an opportunity. Revenge is like other luxuries, there's a time for it. Do you think I am such a fool as to go in for blindfold revenge, and get lagged or stretched?"

Not for Joseph, nor for you, either, Benjamin. I'll tell you what, though, I think this will be a busy day. That old fox Bartley has found out his blunder before now, and he'll try something on; then the Clifffords, they won't go to sleep on it."

"I don't know what you're talking about," says Burnley.

"Remain in your ignorance, Ben. The best instrument is a blind instrument; you shall have your revenge soon or late."

"Let it be soon then."

"In the meantime," said Monckton, "have you got any money?"

"Got my wages."

"That will do for you to-day. Go to the public-house and get half-drunk."

"Half-drunk?"

"Half-drunk! Don't I speak plain?"

"Miners," said Burnley, candidly, "never get half-drunk in t' county Durham. They are that the best part of their time."

"Then you get half-drunk, neither more nor less, or I'll discharge you as Hope has done, and that will be the worst discharge of the two for you. When you are half-drunk come here directly, and hang about this place. No; you better be under that tree in the middle of the field there, and pretend to be sleeping off your liquor. Come, mizzle!"

When he had packed off Burnley, he got back into his hiding-place, and only just in time, for Hope came back again upon the wings of love, and Grace, whose elastic nature had revived, saw him coming, and came out to meet him. Hope scolded her gently; why had she got off the sofa when repose was so necessary for her?

"You are mistaken, dear father," said she. "I am wonderfully strong and healthy; I never fainted away in my life, and my mind will not let me rest at present—I have been longing so for my father."

"Ah, precious word!" murmured Hope. "Keep saying that word to me, darling. Oh, the years that I have pined for it!"

"Dear father, we will make up for all those years. Oh, papa, let us not part again, never, never, not even for a day."

"My child, we never will. What am I saying? I shall have to give you back to one who has a stronger claim than I—to your husband."

"My husband?" said Mary, turning pale.

Hearty as a "Cow Boy."

The Halberdier is a paper published and edited at Camden, Ark., by M. F. Leatherman. Hear what he says about his present condition contrasted with what it was. "He writes. "I can certify to the efficiency of Brown's Iron Bitter as the best and speediest cure for indigestion; having been troubled with indigestion for four months, I took part of a bottle of the bitters, and find myself halo and hearty as a Texas cow boy." It is a splendid appetizer.

The ice bridge at Ningarn this winter is said to be the most massive for many years, and is estimated to be over sixty feet thick.

It is No Wonder

that so many people sink into untimely graves when we consider how they neglect their health. They have a disordered liver, deranged bowels, constipation, piles or diseased kidneys, but they let it go and think they "will get over it." It grows worse, other and more serious complications follow and soon it is too late to save them. If such people would take Kidney-Wort it would preserve their lives. It acts upon the most important organs purifying the blood and cleansing the system, removes and prevents these disorders and promotes health.

"Your little girl is the best child I ever knew," said one lady to another, adding almost immediately, "for an only child."

Fifty Thousand a Year.

To be sure. You've "only got a cold;" "only a cough." "Be all over it in a few days." "D-don't worry about me." Well, we won't. But 50,000 people die every year in the United States from consumption. And every soul of them began that way. Better stop it now with Parker's tonic. This remedy will expel the cold at once.

"Mr. Hope, sir, they won't let me go down t' mine."

"They're discharged."

"Who by?"

"What for?"

"For smoking in the mine, in spite of three warnings."

"You're smoking in t' mine! Who told you lie?"
